Learn how to improve your Healthcare Effectiveness Data and Information Set (HEDIS®) rates. This tip sheet gives key details about the Chlamydia Screening (CHL) measures, best practices and more resources.

Measure	The percentage of women ages 16-24 who are identified as sexually active and who had at least one test of Chlamydia as of December 31 of the measurement year. Report two age stratifications and a total rate: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• 16-20</li> <li>• 21-24</li> <li>• Total</li> </ul>
Exclusions	Exclude patients who qualified for the denominator – a pregnancy test alone, and meets either of the following criteria. On the date of the pregnancy test, or six days after, the patient: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Was prescribed isotretinoin.</li> <li>• Received an X-ray.</li> </ul>
Highlights	CHL can have no symptoms for several weeks. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Routine screening is key to detection.</li> <li>• Spreads through unprotected vaginal, anal or oral sex.</li> <li>• Symptoms can include vaginal discharge, a burning feeling when urinating and pain in the lower abdomen.</li> </ul>
Barriers	Patients may view a CHL screening as sensitive services. This can prevent talking with their doctor. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Provider does not know a patient is sexually active to initiate talks.</li> <li>• Patient is not aware of screening guidelines to ask questions.</li> <li>• Parents go with children to doctor visits and may not know their child is sexually active. Parents then refuse the screening.</li> </ul>
Best practices	Yearly screening for sexually active women ages 24 and younger, and in older women who are at an increased risk for infection. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Use pharmacy data, claims and encounters to identify sexually active women.</li> <li>• Screen patients who use birth control.</li> <li>• Talk about screening guidelines during annual checkups or other exams.</li> <li>• Share the value of a CHL screening.</li> </ul>
